The first Iowa Shorthorn and Polled Shorthorn Directory has been printed. The Iowa Junior's Shorthorn Association hopes this directory will aid you in locating some of the finest Shorthorn cattle in Iowa.

The Junior Association invites you to be a part of the Shorthorn activities and encourages you to watch for the dates of some fine activities in the summer of 1975.

Thank you.

Want Big, Long Cattle?

We have them now. This is Ruby's Beauty 22nd and her calf. She's a first calf heifer by WB Wonder 31st. Take a look at the length of her back and you can see why we can hardly believe a first calf heifer could be this big.

We have more like her too, by Circleview Wonder X, Gold-finder Waverly X and Four Dees Command 50th X, all from the top of the Wertz Bros. and Miles Mann Herds.

We're using WB Wonder 31st X and Tyler's Par Challenge X. One of the longest muscled Haumont bulls we have seen on these cows.

See us a year in advance for breeding females and bulls since we have a very select group to choose from.

Will have a nice selection of heifers this fall.

What You Need To Know About Shorthorns

American Shorthorn Ass'n.

8288 Hascall Street
Omaha, Nebraska 68124
(402) 393-7200

HISTORY

Shorthorns are the world's first improved and oldest breed of beef cattle. They originated around 1600 in the Tees River Valley of Northern England and were the first improved breed imported into America coming to Virginia in 1783. At that time they were commonly known as Durhams.

The influence of these big cattle rapidly spread in America as the early settlers recognized their value for both meat and milk.

Polled Shorthorns were the first major breed to be developed in the U.S., originating in Minnesota in 1881.

The American Shorthorn Herd Book, the first to be published in this country, was started in 1846. The American Shorthorn Ass'n was organized in 1872 and the American Polled Shorthorn Society in 1889.

POLLED and HORNED

The Shorthorn breed contains both horned and polled (hornless) cattle. Those with horns are called Shorthorns...the polled division, Polled Shorthorns. Both branches of the breed record their cattle with the American Shorthorn Ass'n, Omaha, Nebraska.

A breeder can develop both branches of the breed at the cost of only one membership and one annual dues. This close Shorthorn-Polled Shorthorn relationship allows the breeder to use both branches of the breed in his herd improvement program and to expand his market by merchandising both horned and polled cattle.

ADAPTABILITY

Shorthorns are highly adaptable to all climatic conditions. They are the world's most numerous beef breed being developed profitably in Africa, Australia, South America and Europe.
